

Be Careful Online

As we use technology and the internet in our daily lives, it is important to remember to always be a good digital citizen; protect ourselves and others.

If you are browsing or interacting with others online always remember to be cautious.

Never share your personal information online or agree to meet up with someone met online face-to-face.

If you are ever uncertain about information online or an interaction you may have had, talk to your parents or an adult.

Set strong passwords

Content is permanent when published online

Be kind online to others

Avoid clicking on links or downloads that you aren't sure of

Always check your privacy settings

Report cyberbullies.

Never share private information about others online

Never share your passwords or personal information online

Be Careful Online

Whether you are searching for information online or about to post something, always ask yourself the following:

Is it true?

Is it helpful or hurtful?

Is it something I would like to see written about myself?

Is this something I would say out loud offline?

What is the

